Apprenticeships & Traineeships

Electrical pre-apprenticeship course at TAFE Queensland SkillsTech

If you want an electrical apprenticeship you can get a head start with the pre-apprenticeship course at SkillsTech. The Certificate II in Electrotechnology - Career Start will give you basic skills to help gain an apprenticeship. The course also covers a General Safety Induction course (White Card) – an industry requirement to work on a construction site in. Visit <http://tafeskillstech.edu.au/course/11095> for more information about the course and when it is offered.

Want to be an electrician?

Electro Group Training and Apprenticeships is a group training company that specialises in training people for the electrical industry. It employs and monitors the training of electrical apprentices. It also offers the Certificate II in Electrotechnology - Career Start to prepare students for an apprenticeship. For more information, visit <https://www.electrogroup.com.au/index.php>.

AUSTRALIAN DEFENCE FORCE

Are you fit enough for the Australian Defence Force (ADF)?

Many highly regarded applicants miss out on their ADF career opportunity because they don't meet the pre-enlistment fitness assessment. It is vital that applicants continue to maintain an appropriate level of fitness throughout their application process. A 'Get fit for the ADF in just four weeks' guide is available online at <http://www.defencejobs.gov.au/fitness/fitnessPlan/>.

There's flying, and then there's FLYING!

The Australian Defence Force (ADF) website at <http://www.defencejobs.gov.au/airforce/technology/flying/> has information about being a pilot in the Air Force. You can find out:

- What inspires Air Force pilots
- How civilian pilot careers compare with the Air Force
- The thrill of flying
- How to apply.

Career mashers

If you have trouble deciding on any one career, have a go at 'mashing' two or more of your career ideas together. For example, if you are interested in writing, but also have a passion for saving the environment, then why not become an environmental journalist, writing for environmental magazines? If you want to be a carpenter, but want to be a part of the entertainment industry, why not build movie sets for theatre and movie productions?

The High Five of career development

The following information is adapted from The Real Game.

Change is constant - The world of work is always changing. You also change as you develop personally and experience life. Don't be afraid of change; accept it and use it as an opportunity.

Know yourself and follow your heart - One of the most important skills in career management is self-awareness – knowing your interests, abilities, values, aspirations and the things/people that influence you. Start your job ideas list with jobs you would most like (your dream jobs) even if they are currently unrealistic. Exploring these jobs can get you started and lead to other jobs you hadn't thought of.

Focus on the journey - It is good to have goals – short and long term. However, we should not be so focused on these that we miss opportunities that may emerge along the way.

Learning is ongoing - Learning doesn't stop just because you finish your course and get a job. Just as change is constant so is the need to keep up to speed with new technologies, new methods of practice and emerging trends in your career field.

Access your allies - These are the people who can help and support you during your career journey. They can include your school guidance officer/counsellor, teachers, your family and friends, sport coaches and others within your social network. You can learn much from other people's experiences.

Competitions

Additional entry requirement courses at the Queensland University of Technology (QUT)

Most courses at QUT do not have prerequisites; they have assumed knowledge. The exceptions to this are the B Education courses (which have senior subject prerequisites in English, Maths and Science, depending on the course) and specific courses in the creative industries area. The following are QUT creative industry courses that have additional entry requirements:

- B Design (Honours) (Fashion)
- B Fine Arts (Acting)
- B Fine Arts (Dance Performance)
- B Fine Arts (Dance)
- B Fine Arts (Visual Arts)
- B Music
- B Business/B Fine Arts (Visual Arts).

Depending on the course, the additional entry requirement may be a portfolio, audition, an interview, supporting documentation or a combination of these. Do a course search for the above courses on the QUT homepage at <https://www.qut.edu.au/> to learn more about the additional requirements. In addition to applying to QTAC by 30 September 2016 (earlybird date) for entry to these courses, you are also required to apply online to QUT by 9 September 2016. Late applications are not accepted.

Australian Institute of Creative Design (AICD) holiday courses

AICD is a private provider offering study options in the arts and design areas. Some of these areas include photography, interior design, visual arts, surface and textile design, fashion design, styling and design coordination and specialist make-up. Disabilities

My Future: My Life

Leaving school can be a daunting experience for any teenager, but for those with a disability it can pose additional challenges. My Future: My Life is designed to support Queensland secondary students with a disability to prepare and plan for life after school. It does this through a range of support options, including workshops, transition preparation support and financial support. Visit the My Future: My Life website at <http://www.myfuturemylife.com.au/about/about-my-future-my-life/>.

Paid internship program for university students with a disability

‘Stepping into’ is a paid internship program designed specifically for university students with disability who want to gain some paid hands-on work experience in their chosen field of study. The Australian Network on Disability (AND) work with their members to identify and provide opportunities for university students with a disability to ‘step into’ the workplace to gain exposure to their potential career field and get involved in projects and work alongside experienced professionals. Find out more at <http://www.and.org.au/pages/stepping-into...-programs.html>.

People with a disability website

The Queensland Governments website has a section containing information about support for people with a disability in Queensland. It includes a section for young people. Visit the website at <http://www.qld.gov.au/disability/> for details.

Employment

Part-time work – what are your rights and responsibilities?

If you currently have a part-time job or are planning to get a full-time or part-time job in the future, you should know about your rights and responsibilities in the workplace. The Fair Work Ombudsman website at <http://www.fairwork.gov.au/find-help-for/young-workers-and-students> has a 'Guide for young workers' which can be downloaded from the site. The Guide covers topics such as employment conditions, employment awards and agreements, pay rates and much more. Also, the site has a 'Guide to starting a new job' and a 'Starting a new job' online learning course. The ACTU Worksite at <http://worksite.actu.org.au/> is also useful for young people starting their first job.

Want to have your own business? How about a start-up?

The Business Plans website at <http://articles.bplans.com/whats-difference-small-business-venture-startup/> explains that start-ups are different from traditional businesses in the following ways:

- Start-ups are designed to grow fast. They have something they can sell to a very large market. This is one of the reasons most start-ups are tech start-ups.
- Startups tend to rely on capital from angel investors (individuals prepared to take a risk to provide finance for small start-ups or entrepreneurs and, perhaps, mentor them) or venture capital firms (use investor's money to invest in riskier businesses than a traditional bank is willing to take on) while traditional business operations may rely on loans from banks and government grants.
- Start-ups have an exit strategy – the exit is what gives investors their return.

If you like to work hard and then move on; have developed a product or service that, potentially, has a huge market; are an innovator and would like guidance from an expert, then a start-up might be for you.

What is the gig economy?

Not so long ago, the only people who looked for 'gigs' were musicians. So how does the term apply to the general labour market today? In the gig economy, employers contract individual workers for short-term projects. In this environment workers become independent contractors or freelancers – they don't have full-time, permanent, secure jobs with paid holidays and sick leave. Many of them find their jobs on Internet job boards. For example, Skillcrush at <http://skillcrush.com/2015/11/19/25-top-sites-for-finding-freelance-jobs/> lists 25 job boards for freelance designers, developers and other techies. There is some debate about how widespread this type of work is and whether it will become the norm in the future. Read the following articles for more information about the gig economy.

- Does the gig economy revolutionise the world of work, or is it a storm in a teacup? <http://www.economist.com/blogs/freeexchange/2015/10/gig-economy>

National Law Week

The 2016 National Law Week will be held from 16 – 20 May. Law Week is an annual national event which creates further understanding of the role that law and justice plays in today's society. Visit the Queensland Law Week website at <http://www.justice.qld.gov.au/corporate/events-seminars/law-week/events> for activities throughout Queensland. You are invited to join the 2016 Queensland Legal Walk to be held on 17 May as part of National Law Week. Communities across Queensland will walk together to fundraise for Queensland Public Interest Law Clearing House (QPILCH). QPILCH is an independent, not-for-profit, legal organisation that coordinates the provision of free legal services for individuals and community groups in Queensland.

Occupational Information

Careers in Music

The Australian Guide to Careers in Music can be downloaded from the Music Career wiki at http://www.musiccareer.com.au/index.php/Main_Page#. This resource has descriptions for over 150 career options, from areas such as Composition, Performance, Production, Instrument Making and Repairing, Broadcasting, Music Business, Retailing and Wholesaling, Teaching, Writing and Research, Arts Administration, Music Therapy, Libraries, Archives and Information Services, Digital and Online jobs and many more.

Careers in Water

The H2Oz Careers in Water project aims to increase awareness of jobs in the water sector and encourage young people to consider the career opportunities in this industry. The H2Oz website at <http://www.h2oz.org.au/default.aspx> (click on 'Water Career's' and 'Job Categories') provides descriptions of jobs in the water industry.

Jobs in the community services and health industry

The community services and health industry provides many different job opportunities for young people. Many of the skills required of one job role are transferrable to other areas, which makes this industry ideal for people who would like a variety of career pathways. An appreciation of working with people is a key requirement of working in community services and health because much of the work involves interaction with clients who are some of the most vulnerable in society. The Community Services and Health Industry Council website at <http://www.cshisc.com.au/develop/careers/> provides information about jobs in this industry. The 'What is a career?' section has a link to an A-Z Industry listing of over 500 jobs. Each job description includes a section on qualifications and training.

Ultimate Science Guide 2016 – a free careers guide

The Ultimate Science Guide is an annual publication for high school students, teachers and parents developed by RiAUS (Australia's National Science Channel). It provides information on STEM career opportunities, where and what to study and advice on surviving university. You can order a hard copy or download the online version at <https://riaus.tv/content/ultimate-science-guide>. By completing a survey on this site, you have a chance to win one of five ThinkPads.

What does an anthropologist actually do?

Kirrilly Thompson in her recent article in The Conversation, states that anthropologists study living people from the perspective of their culture. Thompson explains that anthropologists aim to understand a group's culture from an 'insider's point of view'. The method used by anthropologists to do this is known as ethnography. This is a qualitative research method which uses participant-observation. That is, the anthropologist lives within a culture, as one of the 'natives' until he/she is proficient in being one of them. This can take a minimum of one year to achieve. You can read Thompson's article at <https://theconversation.com/what-does-an-anthropologist-actually-do-55321>.

According to the myfuture web site (<http://www.myfuture.edu.au>), the following personal requirements are needed to be an anthropologist:

- capacity for detailed observation and accurate practical work
- able to work independently
- enthusiasm for research
- good oral and written communication skills
- sensitive to other people and cultures.

The average annual salary for an anthropologist is $57,304 (excluding super) and the job prospects are below average (from myfuture). Given this, if you are still interested in this job, you can explore the following undergraduate courses in Queensland which offer an anthropology major/specialisation.

- B Arts at James Cook University <https://www.jcu.edu.au/courses-and-study/courses/bachelor-of-arts-in-anthropology>
- B Arts at the University of Southern Queensland <http://www.usq.edu.au/study/degrees/bachelor-of-arts>

Online resources for Year 12 parents

Transitioning from high school to university can be a challenging journey for students and their parents. Several universities provide resources for parents to support them and their children through the transition. Some examples are:

- Australian Catholic University - 'Parents' information'
<https://www.acu.edu.au/567632>
- James Cook University 'A guide for parents and partners'
<https://www.jcu.edu.au/parents-and-partners>
- Griffith University - 'Parents' <https://www.griffith.edu.au/future-students/parents?src=hp&p=gnav>
- Queensland University of Technology - 'Are you the parent of a school student'
<https://www.qut.edu.au/study/undergraduate-study/are-you-the-parent-of-a-school-student>
- The University of Queensland – 'A Guide for Parents' that can be downloaded at <https://future-students.uq.edu.au/publications-and-forms> and a 'Parents' webpage at <https://future-students.uq.edu.au/parents>
- University of the Sunshine Coast - 'USC Parent Lounge'

Year 12 post school folder

Year 12 students are strongly advised to start a folder of information they will need later in the year and early next year. Keep this folder in your room at home and add to it during the year. Items that could be placed in this folder include:

- LUI and password for your Learning Account so you can access your Year 12 results early. You will also be required to know your LUI to complete your QTAC application.
- Tax File Number (TFN), which you will need to apply for a HELP loan next year. You also need a TFN if you want to be paid for a full-time or part-time job.
- The QTAC Guide, which you will receive in June
- Course, job and tertiary entry information you gather at career markets/expos, institution open days, TSXPO, etc.
- The list of courses you are considering (if you haven't a clue, make an appointment to see your Guidance Counsellor/Officer ASAP)

- Handouts on tertiary entry you are given at Year 12 assemblies, expos and lunchtime talks
- Information about available scholarships and tips for submitting a great application
- Additional qualifications you might wish to submit as part of your QTAC application
- Any other information related to your plans for 2017.

Student Connect magazine

The Student Connect magazine gives Year 12 students important and interesting information and advice about their studies, future education, training and career pathways. It is published twice a year – in May and December. The May 2016 edition should be distributed to your school this week. Meanwhile, if you want a head start, the magazine can be downloaded at <https://www.qcaa.qld.edu.au/publications/newsletters-magazines/student-connect-magazine>. Topics in the latest edition include:

- Are you ready for the QCS Test?
- OP myths busted
- Careers expos and open days
- Top tips for success in Year 12
- Profiles and tips from past Year 12 students.

In addition, it tells you how you could win a Microsoft Surface Pro 4 by logging into your Learning Account on the Student Connect website between 1 May and 31 August 2016. You will need your LUI and password to do this - a good time to check where you put this information!

Is social media interfering with your study? Try an e-fast

The following five tips are from 'Addicted to social media? Try an e-fasting plan' by Ritesh Chugh and published on The Conversation website at <https://theconversation.com/addicted-to-social-media-try-an-e-fasting-plan-56804>.

In order to put an end to obsessive behaviour towards social media, it is important to try to abstain from it or at least regulate usage occasionally. The aim of e-fasting is to enable you to reclaim your life, achieve a balance of life and not become hostage to social media.

- 1. Abstain from social media - Decide on a specific day when you will stay clear of social media. This might increase your anxiety in the short term, but the time away will enable you to perform other activities.
- 2. Self-regulate - Set some rules that only allow you to connect to social media at specific times of the day. For example, browsing for a limited time in the evening or not browsing when in bed.
- 3. Limit checks on social media - It is not a good idea to keep checking social media pages without a specific aim. The algorithms of social media feeds are designed to keep users hooked by projecting information higher in feeds, based on users' past interactions. Think of the urge to check incessantly and consider whether it is important or can wait for another time.

4. Disable alerts and notifications - This will mean that you are not constantly reminded of messages by your social media platform. Adopting a pull-based approach of your notifications over a push-based approach will lead to fewer interruptions too. This should reduce the desire to check social media constantly.

5. Remove social media apps from your smartphone - If disabling alerts and notifications do not do the trick, consider deleting social media apps completely from your smartphone. As most people access social media platforms from their smartphone, removing these apps would mean less ease of access. You will then only have access to social media from a personal computer.

As with any diet or fasting regime, there's no one-size-fits-all formula, but the self-control and discipline tips listed above should go some way to reducing your social media addiction. E-fasting has the potential to become a new fad to treat social media addiction and detox your life.
